This popular brand of thin and delicate rye crispbreads is a masterful product of Finnish baking. Finn Crisp has perfected the tradition of producing a light staple that keeps fresh for ages, without losing its wholegrain nutritional goodness.

The historic Helsinki Summer Olympics in 1952 was the perfect opportunity for Finn Crisp to introduce its delicious, healthy crispbreads to the world, which had already been enjoyed in Finland since the 1800s. Today this Finnish household brand is savoured in nearly forty countries across the globe. Finn Crisp is produced by Lantmännen, a renowned agricultural cooperative in Northern Europe specialising in grain products.

All Finn Crisp products contain wholegrain and many are baked with 100% wholegrain flour. Wholegrain is an important source of dietary fibre, minerals, vitamins and antioxidants. Finn Crisp crispbreads are ideal for healthy snacking or to complement entire meals. The toasted cereal flavour of these versatile crispbreads lends itself to a variety of healthy toppings for the health-conscious consumer, without sacrificing taste.

FOX'S

Lovingly Baked since 1853

Biscuits may have been eaten for centuries, but the ones produced by Fox's are in a class of their own. Fox's biscuits are baked in the UK with a very specific mandate: to be better than any other. Consumers seem to agree, making the brand a household name in the UK and far beyond its borders.

What started out as a small Victorian-era bakery in Batley in 1853 has grown into a modern enterprise that bakes more than six billion biscuits a year and sends them all over the world. But they haven't forgotten their family roots. Some of Fox's biscuits are still baked back home, in Batley.

There is something for everyone in the Fox's range. The quintessential "cuppa", whether leisurely made or quickly brewed, is perfectly rounded off with something you can dunk, dip or nibble on from Fox's. Movie nights and coffee catch-ups aren't complete without some of their chunky, chocolatey cookies; children's days are brightened by Fox's colourful Party Rings; and both young and old can slip a snack-ready biscuit bar into their bag before heading off to school, work or on an outdoor adventure.

Creating great snacks is what this family-owned business is all about. Lorenz Snack-World is headquartered in Neu-Isenburg, close to Frankfurt, Germany, where they create high-quality crispy potato chips, among other delicious snacks such as pretzel sticks, crackers and nuts.

Lorenz Snack-World understands that a really good potato chip begins with a really great, carefully cultivated potato. For this reason, they source only the best potatoes from trusted growers, with whom they have worked for over forty years. They then fry their potatoes using only the highest quality vegetable oils to produce especially crispy chips that are a firm favourite in Germany and over eighty other countries.

Lorenz Snack-World is committed to quality throughout the production process. No genetically-modified ingredients are used and stringent checks are made all along the production chain using cutting-edge scientific methods.

When the last chip has been eaten, an empty bag produced by Lorenz Snack-World packaging specialists weighs next to nothing. Commitment to producing quality snacks and lowering their environmental impact are defining characteristics of Lorenz Snack-World.

What started in the German town of Gütersloh in 1910 as a specialist bakery for pre-cut pumpernickel (a German-style dark wholegrain bread) and other speciality breads, has grown into an international success. Today Mestemacher is the market leader in organic rye bread characterised by a long shelf life without the use of preservatives.

Mestemacher's conveniently packaged wholemeal breads are the product of controlled organic farming. The grain is sourced mainly from regional suppliers and ground in their own mill, guaranteeing freshness. Fibre-rich foods made from wholegrains gently processed to keep their nutritional quality intact are beneficial for digestion and can lower cholesterol. Mestemacher delivers the health-conscious consumer speciality breads that are natural, fibre-rich, wholegrain and, ultimately, nutritional in every way.

The longlasting freshness of Mestemacher breads is achieved through a special pasteurisation process that keeps everyday bread fresh up to five months. An unopened pumpernickel can last over two years. Mestemacher breads are so fresh that NASA astronaut Thomas Reiter has specifically requested their products to eat in space.

Mestemacher strives for a balanced relationship between the economic requirements to their company and their commitment to society and the environment. Gender equality in the company is just one notable aspect of this commitment.

The Ritter Sport brand stands for modern, high-quality, innovative chocolate. The distinctive square tablet available today was first launched in 1932 when Alfred and Clara Ritter of Stuttgart, Germany created a chocolate bar that could fit into a jacket pocket without breaking. The idea quickly caught on among football fans who would typically buy chocolate outside sport stadiums on weekends.

The small family company has grown exponentially since the Ritter couple started it back in 1912. The same commitment to quality the Ritters poured into their chocolate creations over a hundred years ago prevails today. But taste and quality go hand in hand. Excellent taste requires consistently high-quality raw materials and processing methods, all of which are foundational to Ritter Sport's success.

Cocoa is integral to the quality and taste of Ritter Sport chocolate. Premium cocoa beans sustainably grown in different regions of the world contribute to the different tastes of their chocolate. The iconic squares enjoyed by consumers are made from cocoa beans grown in Peru, Nicaragua and Ghana. Ritter Sport has their own cocoa plant committed to fair trade and support of local community. Some beans have a strong, nutty flavour; some are more fruity and spicy; and others have a mild, more gentle taste. The result is as it should be — quality squared.

The demand for gluten-free products has grown tremendously. Now, the gluten-intolerant and Celiacs can enjoy tasty snacks along with everyone else, thanks to Schär's gluten-free selection. Schär combines naturally good, premium ingredients with a dash of creativity in their innovative gluten-free speciality products. The Schär brand has become synonymous with gluten-free innovation the world over.

The company has its roots in 1932 when the Austrian physician Dr Anton Schär and his Italian friend Gottfried started to manufacture children's food in Gottfried's factory in Bolzano, Italy. Years later, in 1977, a meeting with an expert in Celiac disease in children led to the idea of manufacturing gluten-free products. The concept was immediately successful. The company grew and expanded to other countries, opening its own research laboratory in 2003. Strategic acquisitions of gluten-free manufacturing sites and brands all over Europe, as well as North and South America, quickly followed.

The specialised team at Schär continues to work on creative and innovative ideas to develop new recipes for the market that will satisfy consumers from the very first bite, gluten-intolerant or not.

For decades Storck has produced quality sugar confectionery and chocolate specialties.

August Storck founded the Werther's Sugar Confectionery Factory in Germany with three employees, a cooking pan and a kettle in 1903. The world's first cream caramel candy was born. In 1934 the company started production of Storck Riesen, the first-ever individually wrapped and branded candy.

In 1964, with the launch of Merci, the company's reputation for premium quality chocolate was established. By 1973 Toffifee, one of the company's flagship products, was made possible by an idea of a Storck engineer for a unique production technology that combined three of the most-loved confectionery flavours: caramel, hazelnut and chocolate.

Over a hundred years later, the company is still an owner-managed family business and its brands are sold in over one hundred countries. Storck is one of the ten largest confectionery manufacturers worldwide. All of their products are developed and produced in-house in three German facilities where stringent quality control procedures contribute to the exceptional quality you get from every Storck brand.

More recently, Storck has adapted to the public demand for healthier snack choices, resulting in a large range of sugar-free confectionery suitable for diabetics.

Venco is a local jewel in the Netherlands. The brand's legacy dates back to 1878 when the liquorice company was founded in Amsterdam. Today, Venco is the leading liquorice brand in the Netherlands, where it is considered "the original Dutch liquorice".

Venco is not only a national Dutch hero. The black Venco liquorice products, produced from the root extract of the liquorice plant, have fans around the world, making the brand an international market leader too.

The iconic Venco liquorice sticks called Schoolkrijt look just like the school chalk they are named after. They have a sweet, crisp, minty shell on the outside and the liquorice on the inside has a slightly spicy flavour kick. The chalk and honey liquorice items are both top-sellers, but Venco covers all the traditional varieties: sweet, salty, soft and hard.
